24 members and their guests visited Askham Bryan College on a warm and sunny evening.

Askham Bryan College is a specialist college which runs a broad range of courses (combined hands on & academic) covering agriculture, animal management, machinery & maintenance, forestry, horticulture and many other associated subjects.

During the looked in detail at tractors and combine harvesters, general agricultural equipment, watched the automatic cow milking process, inspected the vehicle teaching workshops and was given a quick tour of the campus and informed on its history and future plans as it moved into the "T level era".

This was an interesting and eye-opening visit to one of the top colleges of its kind in the UK.

The Society is very thankful to Askham Bryan college for arranging this visit.
