

National Pig Centre 6 July 2023

The National Pig Centre was opened in 2019 by Leeds University as a research facility using state-of-the-art facilities to improve the sustainability and efficiency of pig production.

The aim of the research is “to lower the environmental footprint of pig farming whilst ensuring that high welfare standards are maintained.”

We visited the indoor pig production facility where precision feeding systems and 24-hour camera monitoring systems are just some of the systems used.